

Re-writing Fairytales: a student work ebook

Lessons and exercises based on developing knowledge of and skills in creating modern fairytales that challenge reader expectations using fairytale elements such as key ideas, motifs, 'the hero's journey', archetypal characters and situations, themes and narrative voice as well as intertextuality and binaries

SHELLEY MCNAMARA

Qwiller
www.qwiller.com.au

Re-writing fairytales: a student work ebook

Shelley McNamara

www.qwiller.com.au

Qwiller

First published 2017 by

QWILLER

Visit our website at www.qwiller.com.au

Copyright © Shelley McNamara 2017

All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior written permission of the copyright owner, except under conditions described in the Copyright Act 1968 of Australia (the Act) and subsequent amendments and conditions described in the Terms of Use on www.qwiller.com.au. Exception also applies to license agreements for Annual Subscribers. See the website for details. All enquiries are to be made to the publisher at the address above.

A licence must be obtained and a remuneration notice must be given to a Copyright Agency Limited (CAL) if educational institutions wish to copy any part of this work ebook for educational purposes under the Act. Then, a maximum of 10% of this work ebook is allowed to be copied by any educational institution for its educational purposes. Licence restrictions must be adhered to. For details of the CAL licence contact: Copyright Agency Limited, Level 15, 233 Castlereagh Street, Sydney, NSW 2000. Telephone: (02) 9394 7600. Facsimile: (02) 9394 7601.

Email: info@copyright.com.au

Cataloguing data

Author: Shelley McNamara

ISBN: 978-1-925624-24-3

Title: Re-writing Fairytales: a student work ebook

Publisher: Shelley McNamara

Editor: Shelley McNamara

Proofreader: Jessica Nelson

Cover image: 'Repunzel' by Paul Heppell from Birds in Suits

www.birdsinsuits.com.au

Cover design: Toby Andrews www.lilypad.com.au

Typeset in Adobe Garamund Pro and Tekton Pro Cond

Contents

Welcome	5
Using this work ebook	5
Resources	5
Glossary	6
Part 1: The big deal about fairytales	7
Contemporary fairytales	7
Dog Boy: A modern fairytales	8
Fairytale elements in Dog Boy	16
What are Fairytales?	22
Archetypes in fairytales	23
Archetypes and values	25
Binaries in fairytales	29
Challenging binaries in fairytales	32
Part 2: Communicating ideas in fairytales	34
Writing engaging sentences	34
Experimenting with sentences	36
Understanding clauses	37
The audience of fairytales	42
The purpose of fairytales	42
Narrative voice in fairytales	44
Part 3: Fairytale elements: motifs, key ideas & situations	50
Motifs in fairytales	50
Fairytale motifs in Abhorsen	52
Key ideas in fairytales	55
Situations in fairytales	55
Writing fairytale motifs, key ideas & situations	59
Part 4: 'The hero's journey' in fairytales	63
What is 'the hero's journey'?	64
Steps in 'the hero's journey'	69
'The hero's journey' in 'The Ugly Duckling'	71
Themes in fairytales	76

‘The Forty Thieves’: An Arabic fairytale	77
Themes in ‘The Forty Thieves’	79
Part 5: References to other texts	88
Intertextuality in fairytales	88
Intertextuality in The Jolly Postman	90
Intertextuality in The True Story of the 3 Little Pigs	92
Part 6: Challenging reader expectations	101
Experimenting with texts	102
Creating hyperlinks	104
Writing a 50-word fairytale	107
Condensing writing	110
Re-thinking ways of telling fairytales	114
Editing your writing	116

Part 2: Communicating ideas in fairytales

In this part, we are going to look at ways writers communicate ideas that are found in fairytales through writing engaging sentences.

Writing engaging sentences

The key part of writing successful stories is to ensure you write engaging sentences. They are the building blocks required to bring a whole story together. As you work on writing parts of fairytales throughout this work ebook, it is a good idea to look at the way you use your sentences for dramatic effect.

Let's have a look at a couple of paragraphs to see how you can experiment with sentences to really capture the attention of your audience.

The extracts below are imagined internal monologues from Hans Christian Anderson's The Ugly Duckling. You may remember that this story is about a mother duck abandoning her 'ugly duckling' who is really a swan because he does not fit in. The fairytale is about overcoming the obstacle of childhood fears of abandonment through rediscovering the self. The first paragraph is written from the mother's perspective.

https://www.brainpickings.org/wp-content/uploads/2013/11/hanschristianandersen_theo_vanhoytema1.jpg

As you read each paragraph, see if you can identify the different types of sentences used to illustrate the internal state of mind of the characters.

Mother's perspective

What is this beast I see before me? It's not real. It doesn't look like any of my other ducks. It can't be mine. Surely, it's not mine. It's ugly. Just ugly. Too ugly for my family. Mrs Quack Duck said so. She said, 'Get rid of it! Cast it out. Send it on its way.' But it's my duck. What should I do? I took one more look at it. Its black wings frightened me. It has to go. It just has to.

What did you notice about the length and type of sentences used?

What tone is used and what does this tell you about the internal state of mind of the mother duck? Discuss with a partner. Jot your ideas below.

Did you notice how short the sentences are? The mother seems to be in a state of distress about how different her 'son' is. Her thoughts come quickly, which is shown through the quick succession of ideas in the short sentences. The mother's tone is defensive as she defends her decision to abandon her 'son'. She even calls her son an 'it'! The mother is also offended that she could have such an 'ugly' duckling. The number of questions she asks shows us that she is wondering why this happened to her and what she can do about it.

Now, let's have a look at a paragraph written from the ugly duckling's perspective.

Oh woe is me! My feathers are as black as soot, while my brothers and sisters are as white as milk. I have started to drift away from the flock, sensing they would prefer it that way. I look up to the sky and see the magnificent birds flying and I long to join them. Oh how I feel a pang in my heart as I glide along the lake, wondering where I belong. Ever since I was born, my lonely days have been growing and growing, and now it is unbearable. What can I do? I am what I am. It is time to leave, time to find my flock and leave the past behind.

What did you notice about the length and type of these sentences compared to the mother's perspective?

What does this tell you about the internal state of mind of the ugly duckling? Write your ideas below.

You may have noticed that there are a variety of sentence types as well as sentence lengths. However, the main types of sentences are long and more measured than the mother's sentences. This tells us that the ugly duckling is reflecting on what is happening to him – why he is different, what he longs for and what to do about it. The confusion and pain the ugly duckling experiences is shown through the questions he asks himself and the exclamation. The tone is shown through statements such as 'Oh woe is me!' Phrases such as 'punge in my heart' show the ugly duckling's longing to belong.

Experimenting with sentences

You would have noticed that the sentences in the extracts above are varied in terms of length and type. Using a variety of sentence types and lengths creates a dramatic effect because it shows the reader a great deal about the internal landscape of the character and the situation. This is an important thing to remember as you experiment with writing the fairytale genre in this work ebook (and any other writing, for that matter).

What you may not know is that every sentence is made up of at least one clause for it to make sense. Clauses contain a single and complete idea in a sentence. They are the building blocks of sentences, just like bricks are the building blocks of a building. Punctuation holds the clauses together, just like the mortar of a building that keeps the bricks together.

Understanding clauses

A clause must contain a verb or a verb group and it usually has a subject and an object. You may remember a verb being described as a doing word, but it is much more than that. Verbs are also thinking, saying, feeling, listening and being words.

A basic clause is called an independent clause as it makes sense on its own. The basic form of a clause is as follows:

Subject, verb and object

Let's have a look at an example.

The wolf ate the first little pig.

Subject (noun) verb object

The subject of the sentence tells us 'who' or 'what' the sentence is about. The verb tells us what the subject does. The object of the verb helps us to understand more about the verb.

Sometimes the verb is not just a single word but a group of words. For example:

Rapunzel longed to climb down the tower.

The verb group 'longed to climb down' describes what Rapunzel does long to climb down the tower.

Task 2.1: Understanding clauses

Time: 15 mins

a Identify the subject, verb and object in the following clauses:

Snow White knocked on the door.

The frog sat on his lilypad.

The princess wiped the frog slime from her mouth.

The frog jumped into the pond.

The fox kissed the princess.

Task 2.2: Brainstorming characters

Time: 10 mins

a Imagine a character from an existing fairytale or an imagined fairytale is in extreme distress. Like the mother from 'The Ugly Duckling' story, this character is thinking quickly about a distressing situation. In the exercise, you are going to write a short extract from the perspective of this character.

However, before you begin writing, brainstorm the following:

- the situation that is causing distress

- what the character thinks about the situation

- what the character is going to do about the situation

Task 2.3: Using short simple sentences

Time: 15 mins

a Using short, simple sentences, write a short extract from the perspective of your imagined character from an existing fairytale or an imagined fairytale, who is in extreme distress. This character is thinking quickly about a distressing situation.
